Why you Should Attend?

Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) is the method of managing the overall risks to the strategic objectives of the organisation. ERM strives to ensure that all decision-making processes are transparent and equitable in ensuring that the mission and vision of an organization is achieved.

Risk management is an essential component of the strategic management of any organisation and should be embedded in the culture and activities of the organisation.

Two widely referenced frameworks are:

- ISO 31000 (International Standard)
- The Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission COSO ERM

Risk treatments include: Risk acceptance / Risk tolerance; Risk avoidance / Risk termination; risk transfer, risk reduction / Risk mitigation through internal control or other risk prevention strategies.

Management is responsible for Risk and Risk Management framework, documentation of procedures, risk management protocols, Risk Management trainings, monitoring of Risk and reporting on various risks that an organisation faces.
